PRESIDENT TO PRESENT PLAN AT MEETINGS

Proposal for Aiding Trade and Industry Will Be Presented.

CONFERENCE TONIGHT

With Legislative Leaders, Will Meet Realtors, Bankers Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Oct. 6—A program to set up constructive forces in American industry will be laid before congressional leaders tonight by President Hoover

The domestic situation will be the principal concern of the conference of senators and representatives called by Mr Hoover

Tomorrow similar subjects will be further discussed at a conference here of bankers and real estate men Only eight or 10 have been invited

The President wants to put into action every possible agency of the federal government to aid American business The relation of the banks to real estate financing has been one of the subjects discussed in his previous consultations with financiers.

No disclosure of the President's program will be made prior to his meeting with the congressional chiefs tonight

Because of the arrangements which are necessary to carry out the program Mr Hoover regards it as against the national interest to discuss the project publicly now

The purpose of tonight's discussion as officially described today will be to insure national unity behind the move the chief executive has in mind

Only one or two of the men to attend tomorrow's conference will be bankers and the others real estate men

REPORT DEBT IS TOPIC

Moratorium Extension Said To Be on Program Tonight.

By United Press

WASHINGTON Oct 6 — President Hoover was preparing today to go once more to the aid of financial stricken Europe

An extension for one or two years of the Hoover war debts and reparations moratorium appeared imminent.

Resolved that further American aid is imperative, Mr Hoover summoned available leaders of the senate and house to meet with him tonight at the White House to frank discussions of a proposal to bring this about.

This development came within a few hours after the United Press learned that the possibility of extending the moratorium was being considered by the President and his close advisers

Any action in this direction it is assumed will have linked with it a move also for more world disarmament. Bankers are anxious for debt cuts, but it was indicated that such suggestions are encountering a degree of congressional opposition

MANY TRIBUTES PAID MORROW

Leaders in Various Important Activities Praise Life of Achievement.

(More About Morrow on Page 11)

By The Associated Press

ENGLEWOOD N J., Oct. 6— There was speculation today as to what effect his passing would have upon politics and there was world wide appraisal of his accomplishments in finance and statecraft but dominating all else here was the stunning realization that Dwight W Morrow who but a day before had appeared in excellent health was suddenly dead

From everywhere leaders of nations industries, arts finance and religion sent expressions of their grief at the news of his death yesterday

In Mexico City where his most notable diplomatic services were performed as United States ambassador in Englewood where his home has been for 30 years in New York, where he built his fortune with the Morgan interests and in China and Japan where his daughter Anne and her husband Col Charles A. Lindbergh are vacationing there were equal manifestations of grief

A United States senator from New Jersey a man believed by many to have been on the threshold of even greater political distinction than already had come to him Dwight Morrow died in his sleep at 1 52 p m yesterday A cerebral hemorrhage was the cause of death He was 58 years old.

He had retired in good spirits although over the week end he had complained somewhat of being tired Three physicians and members of his immediate family were at this bedside when death came. His secretary had become alarmed two hours earlier when efforts to arouse Mr Morrow failed He never regained consciousness

Lindbergh Tour Plans Uncertain

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh disembarked from the British aircraft carrier Hermes at Woosung late today after having received word of the death of the latter's father Senator Dwight W. Morrow and immediately motored 18 miles to the American consulate general here.

A launch conveyed the couple to shore from the aircraft carrier which had brought them and their disabled plane from Hankow The plane was damaged last week when it capsized after being lowered from the Hermes and Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were thrown into the Yangtse river

Asked whether he planned to continue his present aerial tour Lindbergh said "Under the circumstances I would rather wait a little while before making any announcement."

Contrasting sharply with the reception given them, this one was marked by grief. Mrs. Lindbergh, showing evidence of shock, was accompanied to a waiting limousine by Mrs. Cunningham.

The first information which reached Mrs. Lindbergh of her father's death was published in a message from the British naval radio station here. She subsequently received, through the American legation at Peking, a telegram from her mother, commanding the earth kindly and suggesting that she and her husband should make no change in their plans.

COURT DENIES REHEARING ON LEASE VALUES

Again Approves Action of Utilities Commission in Gas Rate Battle.

U. S. APPEAL POSSIBLE

Unless Case Is Carried Up Shortly State Board Will Fix Charge.

The state supreme court yesterday approved action of the state utilities commission fixing $650 000 as the valuation of class one leaseholds of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co by overruling the gas company's motion for rehearing on the valuation figure according to an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus today

The decision winds up the case so far as Ohio courts are concerned since valuations on other properties of the company have previously been approved by the state court.

If the gas company does not appeal the decision to the United States supreme court within the next few weeks the utilities commission will fix gas rates for Marion and 31 other cities and municipalities engaged in a rate fight with the company on the basis of the valuations as they now stand

For six years the company and counsel for cities and communities in the fight have battled over the valuation the gas company placed on its property in seeking higher rates In the event the gas company does not appeal to the United States supreme court, the fight will be brought to an end when the commission fixes rates

In the last two years the rate fight simmered down to a dispute over valuation figures on "class one leaseholds of the company or leases on property actually producing gas for present consumption. Once before the commission fixed a valuation on the company's property and the gas company appealed the figure to the state court The court found the leasehold figure was too low and remanded the case to the commission, which corrected the valuation. When the company recently appealed to the supreme court to raise this valuation still further the court denied the appeal.

WASHINGTON STAGES WELCOME FOR FLIERS

Pangborn and Herndon Center of Celebration After Flight from Japan.

By The Associated Press

WENATCHEE, Wash., Oct. 6— Out of the terrors of their historic non-stop flight across the Pacific came affluence, praise and rest today for Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr

Wenatchee and the state of Washington in general went to heretofore unheard-of pains to shower the aviators with comfort. Townspeople raised a purse of $500 to provide the fliers spending money

Pangborn and Herndon were without a cent when they landed here yesterday to complete their 4,577 mile flight from Samushiro beach Japan Before the first cheers had died away a representative of the Tokyo newspaper Ashi handed them an order entitling them to $25 000 — prize money which long had been posted by that periodical for the first non stop airplane flight between Japan and the United States.

No Spending Money

But the $25 000 order didn't provide any immediate spending money and the collection was taken up to take care of that situation

Wenatchee staged a spontaneous celebration. From its 15 000 persons about 10 000 collected to make the fliers welcome.

A movement was started to have the $25 000 prize offered four years ago for a non-stop flight between Tokyo and Seattle given to Pangborn and Herndon.

This morning the fliers were allowed to sleep late, but were called upon to go to a neighboring town for a luncheon and a community banquet.

Behind all the jollity, however, there was the indistinct memory of tember corn went out at 89¼ cents at Chicago and December corn is selling at 85 cents which is the lowest price for contract corn in more than 30 years

March and May Prices

"March corn is around 91 cents and the May level is only two cents higher These prices for later deliveries exceed the December option price by scarcely the carrying charges. If the people who express their ideas as to future prices by the relative positions of the various options are to be believed, prices will not increase

"Reasoning from corn prices at Chicago Ohio's surplus of corn may not sell at more than 25 cents a bushel because of intervening freight and other charges

It is to be expected that some Ohio corn in the western and central counties will sell on the shipping market. Farmers in the corn belt will in some instances be compelled to sell corn in order to raise funds for necessary farm expenses

The great bulk of Ohio's corn crop however will be held on the farm so that the price level for this grain does not have the effect on agriculture which follows from a low price for a cash crop as wheat.

Chicago Not Dominant

'One year with another the Ohio corn price is set by local demands from feeders and the Chicago price is not the controlling influence. The Ohio price can exceed the Chicago price by as much as the freight before importations start into the state In other words Ohio corn growers are protected by a tariff

'But if there is no local demand for corn if practically every feeder has grown enough for his immediate feeding requirements the grain which must sell has only the shipping market for an outlet

'The low price for wheat has dragged down the price for corn Farmers are feeding wheat instead of buying corn at present low levels With wheat at 40 cents a bushel corn could not rise very high before wheat would be purchased instead, for feeding

'Feeding operations will be restricted this winter because of difficulties in financing the purchase of animals Undoubtedly there would be heavy feeding this season if farmers could fill their feed lots

"Five cent hogs show a wonderful profit from 25 cent corn It is hardly likely that hogs will decline below five cents though anything may happen The usual feeding ratio is 10 for corn to one for hog prices The two prices are certain to come close to this ration sooner or later

"One result of present low prices for hogs is almost sure to be an increase in the number of hogs By this time next year we may expect a very clear increase Should Ohio farmers have a good corn crop next year, the increase in this state will be very pronounced

"But,' West concluded "we must remember that Ohio is only a small part of the corn belt and that the corn crop for the United States is under the five-year average

Morrow's Rule Was To Remember All Important Things, Forget Unimportant

Above is shown a recent photograph of United States Senator Dwight W Morrow of New Jersey, whose sudden death yesterday shocked the nation. Below are his famous daughter and son in law, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh

Ignored Formality and Had Faculty of Getting Results.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON Oct 6 — To remember all things necessary, and forget those which were not was the rule upon which Dwight Whitney Morrow built successes in all he attempted

He ignored formality Kings and chiefs of states have waited while he stopped another moment to settle a troublesome question

In working he was indefatigable Every piece he undertook received his entire time Other questions waited He was restless in all efforts at recreation and play Although he enjoyed reading he seldom took time for it

One of the most outstanding works in his career was that on the drafting of the London naval treaty He accomplished in three days that for which diplomatic niceties would have required three weeks In the midst of the first drafting session, his foreign coworkers remarked it was lunch time

Lunch time' Morrow asked "There will be no lunch time until we finish this treaty

Keep on Working

The other delegates assisted and worked the rest of the day, leaving the room exhausted Mr Morrow worked far on into the night without food and continued for three days working 20 hours a day in order that the document be finished

When the American delegation was scheduled to go to Buckingham palace for a formal call on King George, they waited in a London hotel lobby until Mr Morrow's subordinates could convince him he must wear a silk hat He told friends that he hated to wear silk hats

When the delegation returned to New York and posed for pictures all were in silk hats except Mr Morrow He scorned his fellow delegates efforts to get him to wear one

His reputation as a diplomat was spread throughout the world Of some 30 foreign delegates received by King George Mr Morrow was the only one with whom the king took time to talk It was then that Mrs Charles A Lindbergh daughter of Mr Morrow was being taught to fly by Colonel Lindbergh

"How do you like your daughter flying around the country? the king asked Mr Morrow

"I don't like it a little' was the senator's informal, but characteristic reply

Remembers Important Things

His desk often was in disorder but weeks afterward he would remember where he had placed a certain valuable paper

Frequently during diplomatic conferences Mr Morrow would unconsciously place in his pockets valuable documents from the conference table with the idea of studying them later

At such conferences Mr Morrow's secretary often would be asked to search the senator's clothing when papers were missing

A man of great personal wealth the senator paid little attention after he entered public life to his daily personal needs for money His spending money as he termed it was always wadded in a fist-full of bills of both large and small denominations

He would crumple them together and stuff them in the most convenient pocket In paying for anything at a store he would frequently pull a fist full of large bills from his back trousers pocket

A valet went with him every where. Despite every effort by the servant however the senator would appear frequently in public wearing odd trousers and coat—the first he could find in his haste

Job Most Important

To get him to shave—which he preferred to do himself— was an ordeal daily for the valet Often the senator would flatly decline to shave on mornings he was busy and desired to be early on the job

White House attaches recall a special overnight trip Mr Morrow made to Washington last year to confer with President Hoover When he arrived his face and neck bore more than half a dozen gashes much deeper than an unwary stroke of a razor usually inflicts He smilingly admitted he had attempted to shave himself on the train

IRISH AND WILDCATS IN SECRET PRACTICE FOR CRUCIAL GAME

Hanley, Anderson Drill Teams Hard as Terrific Battle Looms Certain.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—Coach Hunk Anderson of Notre Dame, and Dick Hanley of Northwestern, are taking their battle in Soldier field Saturday, so seriously that each has taken his squad into seclusion to prepare for the struggle.

Down at South Bend, Anderson has ordered secret practice for the remainder of the week, so that he can concentrate upon building up a defense against the plunging of Reb Russell, the running and passing of Pug Rentner, and the running of Ken Meenan.

Out of Evanston, Hanley has ordered locked gates while he works on methods of trying to stop the Jaskwhich - Sheeketski - Schwartz - Cronin-Murphy lineup of backs.

Both Rest Monday

Both camps gave up the customary Monday rest yesterday and got right down to business. Scouts for both elevens failed to learn much from Saturday's opening contests, beyond the fact that each has plenty of power and reserves. Neither was forced to use more than a few plays in the opening tests, in which the Irish walloped Indiana, 25 to 0, and Northwestern defeated Nebraska, 19 to 7.

Michigan's squad suffered no serious injuries in its first game Saturday and will have full power available for the Chicago game. The Maroons, however, are not certain of having the services of two stars, Pat Page, Jr., and Lou Kanne, both halfbacks, who must take scholastic tests.

Both Purdue and Illinois expect to be at full strength for their championship contest at Lafayette, Ind., the Illini sophomore lineup again is pretty certain to start, and Coach Bob Zuppke is planning to show the Boilermakers a lot of forward passes. Coach Noble Kizer is still seeking better line play, especially at right tackle.

Two Buckeyes Out

Ohio State will be without two sophomore stars, Ted Rosequist, tackle, and Marshall Oliphant, quarterback, against Vanderbilt. Each suffered serious injuries last Saturday and probably will not be in action for three weeks. Wisconsin is being drilled on an elaborate forward passing game for its battle with Alabama Poly, and Minnesota, speeding westward to meet Stanford, is taking routine drills along the route.

Iowa's line play against Pittsburgh last week so irked Coach Burt Ingwersen that he personally is demonstrating what he wants in Saturday's meeting with Texas A. & M. at Dallas.

Play Marion Nine.

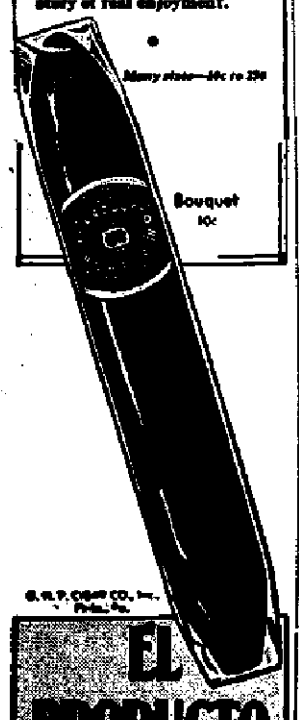

The Marion Merchants colored baseball team, will play Agosta Sunday afternoon at Agosta. Agosta defeated Prospect last Sunday afternoon by a 17-9 score. Six Prospect errors aided the victory.

GRIMES MASTER OF MACK'S SLUGGERS IN THIRD SERIES FRAY

Bewhiskered, Snarling Burleigh Gives Only Two Hits To Put Birds in Lead.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 6—For the first time in five years, the National league, represented by the St. Louis Cardinals, held a world series advantage today over the champions of the American league.

In as many ways as the situation could be diagnosed, these surprising Red Birds had the Philadelphia Athletics, world champions for two straight years, on the run. They lead in the series, two games to one, the first a National league club has done that since the Cards of 1926.

They have beaten Connie Mack's great pitching duo, Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw, in successive games, they have all the better of pitching strength, strategic position, psychology and greatest of all, winning impetus.

Bewhiskered and vengeful, seeking to balance the scale for the two five hit defeats plastered on him last year by the A's in the 1930 series, Burleigh Grimes, snarling his hatred, added another pitching masterpiece to the three hit 2 to 0 shutout Wild Bill Hallahan doled out to the champions in the second game of the opening pair of contests in St. Louis last Friday.

GRIMES

It was the opening game of three straight duels on the eastern front after a week-end cessation of hostility, the stands were jammed to capacity, the day was magnificent for baseball, and even President Hoover, with Mrs. Hoover and a party of friends, were present.

Connie sent Lefty Grove, the long left hander with the tremendous speedball, an almost invincible pitcher in the past American league season, to pull his burning brands from the fire. And eight innings later a youngster named LeRoy Mahaffey was doing Mack's twirling, Grove was all but in tears in his shower.

They got to Burleigh for two hits, one of them Al Simmons towering home run with two out and one man on in the ninth inning, as the Cards belted Robert Moses, for 11 hits and four runs before Mahaffey came in, to win 5 to 2.

For seven innings the veteran whose hair is thinning on the top faked spitballs at the helpless A's and baffled them with his curve and control.

There were visions of a no-hit game and gradually the crowd of 32,300 that last year yelled for his heart's blood as he injected everything but fisticuffs into his two bitter duels with the A's, swung to the side of the gallant warrior, and cried for a no-hit game, something never before accomplished in world series history.

But the right hand master of the dead art, the spit-ball passed Jimmie Foxx to start the eighth and was faced with the problem of sacrificing personal glory for the good of the team, rather than take a chance on a rally, he pitched to Bing Miller, and the right fielder banged it on a line to center for a clean single.

The tension tightened and he got the next three men on flies.

Grimes, who had been ill late in the season and was not considered well enough to start the opening game, had to have a "crick" pulled out of his neck before he could come out to pitch the ninth. He got two men on grounders and then passed Mickey Cochrane. A few seconds later Al Simmons reached across the plate for a high ball on the outside and slugged it over the right field wall.

Burleigh's shutout went with that soaring ball and so did his vision of a one-hit game, but the two hits he did allow placed him in the choice company of six great hurlers who have performed that feat in a world series game.

Grimes helped himself to two of the flock of hits made off Grove and drove in two runs, but again it was the spark and slugging power of the rookie sensation "Pepper" Martin, that touched off the attack. After Jim Bottomley walked in the second, "Pepper" faced Grove again for the first time since he nicked him for three safeties in St. Louis. He promptly singled, drove Bottomley to third, and after Jim scored on Jimmy Wilson's single, rode home on Charley Gelbert's long fly to right field. Again in the fourth after Chick Hafey singled, Martin blasted a double to deep right center and they both rode home on Grimes' single. Bottomley's double Watkins walk, scored the final run off Mahaffey in the ninth.

DOUBLE BY GRIMM EVENS CITY SERIES

Bruins, White Sox Battle in Deciding Game Today at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—The sum of $7,421.62—the difference between the winners' and losers pools in the Chicago baseball championship series—was the objective of the Cubs and White Sox in the final game today.

Captain Charlie Grimm of the Cubs, shoved the National leaguers back into the race for the title yesterday, and just in time in the ninth, with the Sox leading by 2 to 1, and two men on, Grimm rammed out a double to give the Cubs a 3 to 2 triumph and square the series at three victories each.

The other thrill of the game came in the second inning, when, after Vic Frazier, young Sox right-hander, had walked Guy Bush, Cub hurler, Catcher Frank Grube attempted to slug Umpire George Hildebrand, to emphasize his disapproval over the decision. Grube was restrained by Manager Donie Bush and Coach Mike Kelley, and was ordered from the field.

Tommy Thomas for the Sox, and Pat Malone for the Cubs, were the pitching prospects.

NEED ONE MORE

Rochester Redwings Likely In End Minor Series Today.

By The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 6—The shortest "little world series" since 1928 was in prospect today as the Rochester Redwings, champions of the International league, and St. Paul, American Association pennant winners, prepared for the fifth game of the series.

The Redwings needed only two more victories to clinch the series and their chances looked particularly bright in view of the tremendous batting punch they showed in winning three of the first four games in St. Paul.

Billy Southworth planned to send Carmen Hill, bespectacled veteran, to the mound for Rochester for the fifth game while Lefty Leifield of St. Paul wavered between Young Johnny Murphy and Russell Van Atta.

In Comeback Fight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—Benny Leonard will try to prove to the New York state athletic commission tonight that he still is a good enough fighter to appear in Madison Square garden. Ordered by the commission to start his comeback in the smaller clubs, the retired undefeated lightweight champion will meet Pal Silvers, Brooklyn middleweight, in a 10-round bout at the Queensboro stadium.

QUEST FOR TITLE IN N. C. O. LOOP OPENS WITH DOUBLE BILL

Ashland Host to Harding; Mansfield Treks to Galion on Saturday.

Two engagements this week will mark opening of the 1931 battle for the North Central Ohio scholastic football league championship. Mansfield's defending titlists will journey to Galion for a tilt with the striving Orangemen and Harding will trek to Ashland to pry the lid off the league race with "Rosie" Starn's Hilltoppers.

One other N. C. O. entry, Shelby, will entertain Upper Sandusky, a warmup, non-league opponent while Bucyrus, the sixth and final league member, will enjoy an open date before meeting its first league opponent, Ashland, on Friday, Oct. 16.

Pre-season indications pointed to a spirited battle for the league crown this year. Developments to date only serve to increase the belief that the race will be unusually close and hard-fought. Mansfield, with a host of veterans, retains its position as a slight favorite to cop the third consecutive title but it is hardly likely that Murphy will be able to pilot his Tyger crew through the third straight year undefeated.

Shelby Looks Weak

Practically every team in the league with the exception of Shelby possesses sufficient power to enable it to remain in the race until late in the season. Shelby, with Jim Miller out, appears destined to occupy the league cellar for the second consecutive season.

The two league engagements Saturday of this week will provide a severe test for the four teams concerned. While the outcome of neither game will definitely make or break any of the four teams as far as the championship is concerned, the two winners will have taken a very definite step towards the crown.

Galion remains the dark horse team of the league at this writing, having played only one game, that with Crestline. True it is that the Orangemen won that by an overwhelming score but Crestline is of such doubtful ability that the result is hardly a fair test of Galion's strength. The Mansfield battle will be a stiff obstacle for Coach Fred McClintock's outfit, one it appears doubtful if they would be able to hurdle. However, it should be a bitter battle from start to finish.

Harding On the Spot

The outcome of the Harding-Ashland setto at Ashland Saturday is also a decidedly difficult one in which to forecast the correct result. Harding scaled the heights against Columbus South in the opening game of the year and then slithered into the depths to lose to Delaware a week later. Consequently the Presidents are pretty much "on the spot" in the Ashland fray. If the Presidents can turn in a creditable showing against Ashland, a high position in the final standings is probable. However, another such showing as against Delaware and they will probably find themselves relegated to a position slightly above that of Shelby.

Ashland has also played some good bad and indifferent football in three starts this season to date. The Hilltoppers have lost two and won one but despite the two defeats, have at times displayed flashes of power that if continued will carry them through the year in fairly good style. The outcome of this game depends more on the improvement, or lack of it, shown during this week's practices than on the results of former games.

Shelby will be able to chalk up a victory at the expense of Upper Sandusky although the Whippets may be forced to extend themselves to gain a very big advantage.

Rampaging "Pepper" Scores Again

Pepper Martin, Cardinal centerfielder and sensation of the 1931 World Series, is shown in this Associated Press telephoto scoring another run for St. Louis. Martin got his sixth hit of the series in the second inning of the third game, was advanced by Wilson's single and scored on Gelbert's fly. In the fourth inning Martin again got a hit and scored.

Shekles Are Big Help So Moguls Hope for 7 Games

BY FRANK G. MENKE
I. N. S. Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 6—Fifteen big league magnates—and maybe a sixteenth, too—knelt in prayer through the night and into today, pleading that the A's be given the power to snare this afternoon's ruckus.

It means much to the magnating boys—$150,000 to $300,000—if the now sad and forlorn hirelings of Connie Mack can arouse themselves from lethargy sufficiently to bang the Cardinals into a defeat that would make it two-all and force the series into six and possibly seven games.

Wafting eastward from the banks of the Mississippi were kindred prayers offered by railroads, hotel keepers and others who profit by banner attractions that draw mobs; prayers for an Athletic triumph that would guarantee the return of the thousands of tourists who fluttered around last week in the ozone of "Ol Saint Lou."

Of course, leading in these entreaties was Connie Mack, the man who wants to win today, tomorrow and later on in the week so that his dreams of three straight world championships can come true.

Chorusing with him were 14 other club owners as well as a couple of league presidents, because all of them would benefit from the cash that would be derived from a sixth and seventh struggle.

Breadon In Solitude

As to Sam Breadon, owner of the Cards—well, nobody really can tell about Sam. He wasn't with the others at the "services;" maybe he was prayerful in solitude. Maybe he wasn't praying at all. Perhaps he is burning with a yearning that the Cards grab the next two—and the title—although no one can imagine that Sam would be fearfully anguished if they did have to play six or seven times before a world's championship banner can be lifted on the Cardinal's flagpole.

The spirit of the times, y'no.

It'll be Bill Hallahan, the portside kid, who whitewashed the A's the other afternoon, against George Earnshaw, who was flung for a loss; it will be the Cardinals, on a hitting rampage, opposed to a group of gents who have been able to pound out only five hits in 16 innings; it will be the dashing and dauntless St. Louisans in combat with the depressed and distressed Philadelphians.

Mahaffey Shows Little

Grove, the A's ace of aces, has won once and lost once; he was tagged for 12 hits the first time out and 11 yesterday. Earnshaw was whipped in his debut. Mahaffey, who was reckoned as a possible menace to the Cardinals' ambition, showed so little in the one inning he worked yesterday, that he can not be regarded as somebody the A's can lean upon in hours of desolation.

The A's beat Derringer, a kid, with a substitute at third. Faced by Hallahan, a regular, they were shut out and let down with three hits. Confronted by Grimes they looked like prep school boys and gathered in only two safeties.

In the final summary, it shows that the A's have made 15 safeties in three games; the Cards have rolled off something like 29; the A's have watched their two stars—Grove and Earnshaw, go down to defeat, whereas Hallahan and Grimes, who were expected to carry the brunt of the throwing burden, are still peerless people.

So it does seem as if plenty of prayers are vital if the Cards are to be halted in their feverish desire to win the next two duels and end the series right here among the mourners and wailers of Quakertown.

Physic the bladder as you would the bowels. Drive out impurities and excessive acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Get a 25c test box of BUKETS, the bladder physic, from any drug store. After four days if you are not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. BU-KETS containing buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc., acts similar to castor oil on the bowels. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains arising from bladder disorders, you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Ungericht's Drug Store.—Adv.

Hal Pennington, Xavier university back, today was leading Ohio college football players in scoring as a result of his activities in Xavier's game with Kenyon last week. Pennington scored 21 points.

Nelson, Wooster quarterback, was second high scorer with 19 points. He was a consistent point maker in Wooster's first two games. Martin Schnur, University of Dayton, was in third place with 18 points. Schnur led a week ago but failed to score in the game against Boston college Saturday.

TOE TWISTERS ROUGH THINGS IN GENERAL ON OPENING CARD

Four Knockouts in Two Bouts at Shovel—Well, That's Not Bad.

BY KARL McELROY

The toe twisters got rough last night when they opened the 1931 fall season of bigger and better wrestling at the Steam Shovel gym.

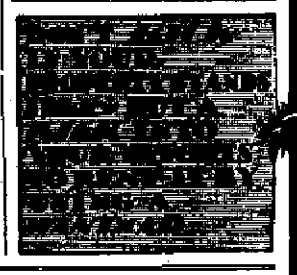

Not that getting rough is anything new in this glorious racket of cauliflowered ears, but last night's bout bordered upon boxing with a little bit of none too clean football added to give the fans that added thrill they love to feel and talk about for several years.

Four knockouts in two bouts is not a bad average in any man's wrestling match. But that's just what happened last night—and did the fans like it!

Charles Hanson won the featured main go battle from Pat Riley, the big Irisher from Dublin. Hanson took the first fall with a reverse back slam in 20 minutes. It took Riley about 50 seconds to take the second fall. Hanson insisted it was a brick that hit him in the side of the head but Riley assured the fans it was nothing but a fist. Anyway, he won the fall. When it comes to slapping this Hanson lad may not be Irish but he sure packs a mean wallop. Just to outdo the record established by Riley, Hanson slapped Riley down to take the third and deciding fall in 40 seconds. That was cutting the evening's record in half.

Charlie Santon won the semi-final match by the forfeit route. A flying headlock gave Dick Lever the first fall in 20 minutes. Lever knocked himself cold when he attempted to block Santon out of a hold and was pinned with a half completed crab. The second fall lasted nine minutes and Lever was unable to return for the deciding fall.

Tom Temple pinned the barefoot Ray Hamilton in six minutes of their scheduled 15-minute preliminary go.

GRAIN PRICES IN BRISK GAIN

Wheat in Sudden Upturn Following Rise in Securities Values.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 6— Upturns in grain prices early today accompanied brisk rallies shown by securities. There were also reports that the amount of wheat afloat for Europe was now only sufficient for two or three weeks' requirements. Opening at 1-4@1 cent advance, wheat afterward gained further. Corn started unchanged at 3-4 higher and continued to point upward.

Besides the stimulus given to wheat as a result of stock market jumps, buying received momentum on account of drought advices from western Kansas. With 25 per cent of the wheat acreage in that region still unseeded, reports said growers had stopped planting, and would do no more until it rained. Another bullish factor was word that seeding was slow in parts of Russia, that seaboard receipts in Rumania were decreasing, and that a falling off in Black Sea shipments appeared likely.

On the other hand, tremendous stocks of wheat were reported to be held at present in Great Britain, almost 100 per cent more than was the case a month ago. A leading unofficial authority was also quoted as saying little chance was apparent that European continental countries would make any appreciable modification in import duties or milling quotas before 1932. Corn and oats were strengthened by a forecast of showers over the main corn belt following heavy rains in eastern Nebraska and western Iowa.

Provisions responded to grain strength, despite lower quotations on hogs.

London Is Alarmed by 21 Murders in Year, While New York Has 421

LORD BYNG of VIMY   SCOTLAND YARD.

By International News Service

LONDON—Such is the world constituted that what causes apprehension on one hemisphere would be hailed with rejoicing in another.

London and New York speak the same language, both are of nearly an equal size, numerous things they have in common, but in the matter of crime, the prevention of it and the arrest and conviction of criminals they are as far apart as if they represented the metropolis of distant planets.

Where the British capital is troubled by the fact that it had 21 murders in 1930, New York would be surprisingly pleased if it could held up suuch a record. That one city is ashamed of would be the pride of the other. Well, let's see why.

Worried Over 21

The annual report of Lord Byng of Vimy, commissioner of metropolitan police, states, with worry written between every line, that there were 21 homicides committed within the area supervised by the London police during 1930. That area has nearly 12,000,000 people.

Lord Byng, a hero of the war, later governor-general of Canada, and now chief of one of the most efficient police departments in the world, amplifies his astounding (to British minds) report by pointing out that 21 murders in one year brings up the average to that of post-war days and represents a tremendous increase over the number committed the previous year, which was 10.

However, this doughty warrior who is protecting Londoners with a higher rate of efficiency than was ever dreamed of on this side of the Atlantic in a city of similar size, is happy to state that 10 of the murderers were arrested and punished, nine committed suicide, including one who had done two of the Atlantic in a city of similar one slaver at large. And with such a record. British law enforcement authorities are fretfull

Compared with N. Y.

Now we'll take a hasty and shamefaced glance at the criminal record of New York. Prepare yourself—don't be surprised at anything. In 1930, where there were 21 homicides committed in London, there were 421 murders chalked up in New York. It is distinctly interesting to note in this connection that out of the 421 cases of violent deaths 280 arrests were made and less than 20 per cent of these resulted in convictions!

If New York could attain in one year the enviable record of only 21 murders and have all but one of the criminals either brought to justice or put out of the way by their own hand what rejoicing there would be. Yet this same record, in London, caused dismay.

An informative sidelight on the report of Lord Byng is the fact that he declares a slight increase in the number of burglaries is largely due to the trusting nature of Londoners, who seldom lock their doors or bar their windows in any fashion. Imagine a New Yorker or a Pumpkin Centerian, for that matter, leaving his house unlocked in this land of the free. Certainly most free with its lawlessness.

See Lack of Progress

It has been stated by learned men of the legal profession that while America's statutes were based on the judicial machinery of Britain originally, the laws governing procedure have not kept pace with changes made in England. It was recently pointed out, for instance, that since 1870 the British court procedure has been radically different than that practiced in the U. S., although Britain was the original teacher. The difference now, it is said, is due to sweeping and modernizing changes which were made in England in 1870, but never followed in America.

Aside from the purely legal aspects of comparing the two great cities of Great Britain and America, the performance of their respective police forces is worthy of scrutiny. Americans like to pride themselves on their stalwart bluecoats, the "Finest," and so forth, but evidently even the "Finest" will have to tear a sheet from the instruction book of Scotland Yard and the London "Bobbie" to equal their splendid record.

AIR CADETS TO HOLD AIRPLANE CONTEST

Boys Will Fly Model Ships at Y. M. C. A. for Valuable Prizes.

Members of the American Air cadets will hold an indoor model airplane contest Friday at 7:30 p. m. at the Y. M. C. A. which is open to the public, officials announced today. All boys from 8 years of age to 20 are invited to participate.

Six events will comprise the contest with a first prize in each contest being a trip to Akron to view the new dirigible, "Akron." Second prize for each event will be an airplane trip over Marion and the third prizes are to be announced later.

Any entrant winning three first prizes will be handicapped in following events. Three official flights of 10 seconds each will be allowed each contestant with three unofficial flights comprising an official flight.

The first event will be for small planes able to rise off the ground by means of a rubber spring which is limited to eight inches in length. The second event will be a 50 foot speed contest open to single motor indoor models. Event No. 3 lists small planes of the rising type which are to be hand launched from an elevation not exceeding six feet from the floor. The rubber spring motors is limited to eight inches in length.

The fourth event will be an indoor endurance contest for any type of hand launched models with a rubber spring motor not exceeding 12 inches in length. The fifth event will be a competition between indoor glider models which may be launched by any method desired. These models must not exceed 24 inches in length. The last event is open to non-winners in the previous events and the type of competition will be decided by the entrants.

Qualifications for the American Air Cadets merit badge are scheduled for between events and are open to any type model. Ten seconds flight wins a pilot badge and ninety seconds in the air will be considered qualification for an ace pin.

RAILROADS REPAIR TRACK CROSSINGS

Prepare for Winter Traffic by Rebuilding Sections with Concrete Slabs.

As a result of a program of repairing and rebuilding railroad crossings in Marion and Marion county for the winter season, motorists will find these crossings much safer and more convenient for travel, officials said today.

Some of the crossings have been repaired, while others have been completely rebuilt for winter traffic.

On the principal crossings in Marion and the county, reinforced concrete slabs are used, each slab weighing 800 pounds. These slabs have steel strips on the outside and steel bars on the inside. In repairing crossings, these slabs are lifted out and replaced when the work is completed, making it unnecessary to rebuild the entire crossing.

MAN WHO WOUNDED 2 IN FIGHT SOUGHT

Shooting Occurs on North State Street Following Fight.

Police today were continuing their search for Hillard Tyler, Negro, who is charged with wounding Henry Johnson and Marshal Cook, also colored, Sunday afternoon following a fight. Their condition was reported as improved this morning.

Neighbors in the vicinity of 536 north State street, where the shooting took place, say that Tyler, following the fight in which he received a broken finger, went from house to house in the neighborhood seeking a gun and finally obtained one when he said he wanted to shoot a couple of rats.

Returning to the scene of the fight he opened fire on the two men, Johnson receiving one charge in his legs while Cook escaped with less serious injuries. When the police arrived, they found Johnson lying in the alley. Both Cook and Tyler had disappeared, the former was picked up later, however, and given medical treatment.

WILL QUESTION MEN ON HOLDUP CHARGE

Two Expected To Plead Intoxication When Arraigned in Court Today.

That they were drunk and did not know what they were doing is expected to be the defense offered when Harold Browning, 21, of 929 Kenton avenue and Beacher Williams, 29, of 920 Kenton avenue, are arraigned in municipal court today on robbery charges in connection with the hold up of four youths in an automobile on Silver street early Saturday morning.

They were arrested shortly after the holdup by police on information supplied by the youths. Police were given a description of the men together with the license number of the car in which they were riding.

The four youths who gave their names as Glenn Moore of 196 east George street, Harry Stumbo of 262 north State street, James Feltabaum of 457 north Greenwood street and William Wilson of Akron told the police they were sitting in a parked car on Silver street when two men drove up. When their demands for cigarets was not complied with, they ordered the youths from the car and, after taking 35 cents from one of them, drove away. An empty wallet from which one of the boys had taken his money and threw it on the floor, was also taken by the men, the boys said.

The two men, Police Prosecutor John Wiedemann said this morning told the police they had been drinking and did not realize what they were doing. It was expected they would be arraigned before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin some time this afternoon.

He was unable to furnish bond and was taken to the county jail.

Johnson, who pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Martin Saturday, was charged by Ryan with having taken his automobile from the fairground without his knowledge or consent and that when he returned it later, in addition to having been driven 55 miles, $13.75 worth of accessories were missing.

O. S. U. COURSES OPEN TO ALL

Economic Reasons for Present Business Conditions Included in Study.

In an effort to stimulate interest in extension courses in business law and investments which started here last week under sponsorship of the Ohio State university, Dr. T. L. Kibler, director of the department of commerce extension at the university today called attention to the unusual opportunity given residents of Marion and vicinity to study the economic "why" of present business conditions as well as better their education as it applies to business generally. Methods of producing business when conditions are adverse, are also to be studied.

Courses Open

The courses started last week at Harding High school, both subjects being taught in night classes. Interest in the classes, which has run high in previous years, has lagged this year, and with lectures getting under way this week, an effort is being made to build up the enrollment.

Persons residing in Marion, and cities and villages in this district, are invited to investigate the courses and enroll in the classes. Both subjects are particularly applicable to business.

Classes in business law will be in personal charge of Professor J. Wayne Ley, a regular member of the university faculty. The first regular lecture in business law will be given Wednesday at 7 p. m. at the high school. The course covers contracts, sales and agency, and negotiable instruments. It is designed, according to university officials, to clarify the question of the rights and obligations of individuals, partnerships and corporations.

First Lecture Thursday

The first regular lecture in investments will be given Thursday at 7 p. m., by Professor Milo Kimball, an authority in this field. The course covers the investment features of stocks and bonds, life insurance, real estate, savings banks, building and loan associations and investment trusts. It also embraces a study of bond houses and stock exchanges in supplying securities to the investing public.

The university, Dr. T. L. Kibler, director of the department of commerce extension at the university says, presents the program to the people of Marion and neighboring cities as a public service, supported largely by the university.

FEDERATION DEVISES PROSPERITY PROGRAM

Labor Organization Criticizes Capitalists and Suggests Plan for Future.

By The Associated Press

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 6—The American Federation of Labor convention swung today into the business of planning for the return to industrial stability with capital accused of having "broken faith" in lowering wages.

Committees prepared resolutions and criticisms designed to head the national body toward its "seven milestones of prosperity."

William Green, the president, speaking at a banquet last night charged that employers had violated pledges they made to President Hoover and organized labor of the nation at a Washington conference to maintain the wage standard of the United States.

Labor, he said, asked to guard against strikes and avoid the "unrest always fomented before in times of depression" has "never violated its pledges."

The executive council report, comprising a record of the achievements of the past year and a summary of means tending to relieve unemployment and depression, was divided among committees for study, comment and action.

Here are the seven schemes advocated: a conference to divide available work; shorter working hours; keep the United States wage standard; guarantee their jobs to those working now; no child labor; stabilize industry so everybody will work all the time; balance supply and demand, with beer to galvanize both into action.

NOLLE INDICTMENTS IN ARSON CASE HERE

Ben Miller and Sam Friers Freed of Charge in Shoe Store Fire.

Indictments charging Ben Miller of Sandusky and Sam Friers of Cleveland with arson and burning personal property to defraud an insurance company were nolled in common pleas court today, because of lack of evidence.

The cases were to be tried before a jury today and Wednesday.

At the time the indictments were made by the September term grand jury, officials of the state fire marshal's office, who were in charge of all investigations and prosecution in the matter, were in possession of information which they hoped to develop into evidence to be used against the two men. This information failed to materialize into substantial evidence, officials say.

Friers and Miller were charged with arson in connection with a fire last May in a shoe store in the Marion theater building.

Aluminum paint was applied to the pipe lines of a California water company to reflect the sun's rays and reduce the temperature of the water.

they can, saying, "Mr. Edison slept better, almost six hours." But there is no real comfort.

Unfortunately for his health, Mr. Edison has persistently deprived himself of needed sleep, grudging every hour taken from his work, even in old age. And that counts against him now.

Because of curtailing sleep, Mr. Edison did to his nerve battery, his own nervous system, what he would not do to his electric batteries.

Pope Pius has repeatedly inquired by cable concerning Mr. Edison's health. Mr. Edison is described as a "free thinker," but that makes no difference to the head of the Catholic church, who sees greater importance in Edison's services to the human race than in his passing individual beliefs. John Eyre Sloane, Edison's son-in-law, who is a Roman Catholic, has acknowledged gratefully the sympathetic messages from the Pope.

OPTIMISM is beautiful, especially in a depression. Therefore, praise Mr. "Stitch" McCarthy, who defeated Mr. Jack Spero in a contest for the title of "chief of the New York League of Locality Mayors, Inc."

Mr. "Stitch," in the course of many fights and speeches that enlivened the election, remarked: "This Spero is just a crab. Why, I beat him practically unanimous: the vote was 12 to 11."

That interpretation of figures is real optimism.

ers to this end increased rapidly. Mr. Hoover has canvassed the situation in a series of conferences during the last few days. He has become convinced that immediate action is desirable.

It is reported that he conferred secretly with New York bankers over the week-end. These talks, it is reported, were followed by a conference in New York Monday at the federal reserve bank attended by Albert H. Wiggin, who headed the bankers' committee which recently investigated Germany's financial condition at the request of the major powers, George Whitney, partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank of New York, also were reported present at the New York meeting.

Will Go to Congress

The President is seeking now to lay the difficulties frankly before members of congress and obtain their informal approval. Tonight's conference is expected to be one of the decisive events in shaping America's part in the tangled world situation which has wrecked temporarily the allied plan for collection of war debt reparations from Germany and American efforts to obtain repayment of billions of dollars in loans, brought Austria and Germany to the brink of bankruptcy and forced England to suspend the gold standard.

Powerful elements in Congress, while consenting to the one-year moratorium arranged in June, are known to regard with serious question any extension of this holiday unless Europe acts to reduce its heavy armament burdens and otherwise endeavors to set its house in order.

FIND MOTHER, SON GUILTY OF MURDER

Detroit Woman Convicted After Twelfth Ledger Dies at Her Home.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 6—Mrs. Rose Veres, Hungarian rooming house keeper, and her son, William, 16, were convicted last night of killing Steve Mak, a lodger, by throwing him from a second story window, to realize on insurance policies Mrs. Veres carried on his life. They will be sentenced Oct. 13.

The state produced evidence to show that Mrs. Veres paid premiums on insurance policies totaling $5,200 on Mak's life. Two witnesses testified that the woman and her son attempted to poison Mak and that when the attempts failed, beat him into semi-consciousness and threw him from the window, on Aug. 23. One of them said Mrs. Veres offered him $500 to keep silent.

Mak was the twelfth lodger in the Veres home to die within eight years, most of them, investigators said, under suspicious circumstances. The inquiry which followed Mak's death revealed that Mrs. Veres had paid premiums on 75 insurance policies on the lives of her lodgers.

CHILD DIES OF BURNS

By The Associated Press

TIFFIN, O., Oct. 6—Alvin Boes, 12, is dead of burns received Aug. 2 when his elder brother became excited and sprayed his clothing with a can of blazing gasoline. A younger brother Cecil, 6, died a few hours after the accident.

Casters that can be adjusted for height, then locked in place with a plate, have been invented for furniture that stands on uneven floors.

VOICE FAILED

Dorothy Drew (above), 16, of Dover, N. H., decided to make dull times exciting. So she borrowed brother's clothes, had a haircut, and headed for New Haven, Conn. Stopping in Boston, she asked a policeman where she could get a room—but, while she had changed all outward appearances, she forgot about her girlish voice. She's homeward-bound.

Commissary Department To Be Opened by Society

Family Welfare Croup Discusses Plans for Aiding Needy at Meeting at Y. M. C. A.; Will Conduct Drive for Used Clothing for Distribution in Winter.

Plans for operating the commissary department of the Family Welfare society were discussed when members of the commissary committee met last night in the society's headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The commissary, which will be opened in the near future, will be operated along the same plans as last year and citizens of the community will be asked to contribute to its upkeep through gifts of othing and other commodities.

To Drive for Clothes

An intensive campaign will be made by the department with the assistance of Boy Scouts of the city for clothing which can be fitted up for use by the needy of the city and residents of the city are asked to contribute as generously as possible. Cards and paper bags, similar to those used last year for gathering the clothing, will be distributed by the 300 Boy Scouts at an early date and arrangements have been made for gathering them in at a later date.

A request that garments be clean when sent to the commissary was voiced by the committee as this will aid materially in the work of remodeling. Clothing and all articles will be renovated and cared for the same as last year and the work of repairing and remodeling the garments will be systematized with workers scheduled for each day. Although the campaign will be primarily for clothing, money will be most acceptable for the purchase of hose, etc., for children.

The department will be located on the third floor of the Y. M. C. A. building instead of the first floor as last year. The room formerly occupied by the Harding Memorial guard detachment will be fitted up, according to plans, making the place accessible from the office of the society on the second floor.

Hale in Charge

Earl N. Hale will again be in charge of receiving, fumigating and sorting the clothing, furniture and other articles and Miss Alice Hane was named chairman of a committee in charge of the distribution of the articles and clothing in the commissary department. Mrs. O. G. Stephenson was named chairman of a committee to arrange for the sewing days and rooms and equipment will be in charge of Henry True. M. L. McDaniel is finance chairman of the department and Morgan Burke is in charge of publicity. E. J. Schoenlaub is chairman of the commissary department.

During the meeting it was decided to procure several old style sewing machines to be placed in the work room and also to arrange to have one woman arrange the work for each day of the week.

what might have happened had they not outflown the hazards that beset them.

Ice had formed on the wings of their plane. Their motor stopped when they were 3,000 miles from Japan. Their hopes suffered a severe shock when they thought they were approaching the mainland and then flew for three hours before sighting terra firma.

They fought heavy clouds and the ice threat over the Aleutian islands. They had no shoes, only wool stockings shielded their feet from the sub-arctic frigidity. They became deafened by the motor and had to write notes in order to communicate with each other, though they were sitting side by side.

Ice Nearly Stopped Them

"It was the ice that nearly stopped us," said Herndon, in an interview published by the Seattle Times. "It formed on the wings shortly after we passed over Dutch Harbor, and although it was dark, we could feel the weight piling up. It slowed down the plane but we kept her nose straight ahead. * * * The old bus picked up the extra load and kept right on going and we knew we were going to be all right.

"As we flew out of sight of Japan we detached our landing gear and dropped it into the sea. The plane spurted ahead as the load dropped and it gave us a lot more mileage and better speed, just as we figured.

PORTSMOUTH JUDGE RESIGNS UNDER FIRE

William R. Sprague Quits After Arrest on Charge of Embezzlement.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—The resignation of Municipal Judge William R. Sprague, of Portsmouth was received today by Governor White who said it would be accepted. Judge Sprague is at liberty under $10,000 bond on a charge of embezzling $2,115 from the municipal court.

Governor White said he had no candidates under consideration as yet for appointment to the vacancy. Judge Sprague's term expires Dec. 31, 1931.

The charge was filed against Judge Sprague after Common Please Court Judge Russell McCurdy ordered his arrest from the bench at the conclusion of Sprague's testimony in the trial of Mrs. Margaret Tidd, former municipal court clerk, on charges of embezzling $2,115 from the city. Mrs. Tidd was convicted.

Judge Sprague was summoned as a state witness against Mrs. Tidd after she testified the judge was responsible for the shortage in the clerk's accounts. She said she had been friendly with Judge Sprague for several years and that they made a week's trip to New York together.

classmate of Calvin Coolidge, to the time of his death, when he had already achieved fame, riches, position, honor and the regard of his countrymen, was "don't take yourself too darned seriously." That was his answer to friends urging him for the Presidency.

President Voices Tribute

President Hoover, attending the world series game at Philadelphia, was not told of Senator Morrow's death until he was about to return to Washington. Later the President said:

"The country has suffered a great loss. His loyal and generous character as a neighbor and friend; his public spirit as a citizen; his services during the war; his accomplishments as ambassador to Mexico, his unique contribution to the success of the London naval conference, are the record of that sort of an American who makes our country great."

Thousands of messages of condolence came to the Morrow home.

A police guard was posted about the Morrow estate last night as the crush of visitors continued to grow. Only members of congress, New Jersey state officials, associates of Mr. Morrow and his own circle of friends and relatives were permitted to enter to pay their respects.

Funeral Tomorrow

Funeral services will take place tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church in Englewood, of which Rev. Dr. Carl H. Elmore, a personal friend of the Morrows, is pastor.

With his death, the political situation in New Jersey became tangled, for the time being. His loss stunned his colleagues, who recognized him as the leading Republican opponent of prohibition. His Democratic rivals, who throughout the senatorial campaign had never touched on or criticized his personal or political life in a single speech, sent their regrets to his family and to his party.

Dwight Morrow, a comparative newcomer in politics, was dominant in New Jersey's Republican circles. He was the one man, politicians admitted, who was greater in personal popularity than the offices he hoped to win.

The gubernatorial campaign in New Jersey between former United States Senator Baird, whom Mr. Morrow succeeded, and former Governor Harry A. Moore has been brought to an abrupt halt by his death.

It was thought in political circles that either Baird, or Walter E. Edge, ambassador to France, might be named by Governor Larson as his successor.

He left his wife, Elizabeth Reeve Cutter Morrow, three daughters, Elizabeth, Anne Lindbergh and a son, Dwight W., Jr.

CURTIUS RESIGNS AS FOREIGN MINISTER

Center of German Political Controversies Quits; Successor Uncertain.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 6—Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, whose policies have been the center of repeated political storms today submitted his resignation to Chancellor Bruening. Official circles understood it would be accepted.

In his letter to the chancellor, he said:

"In a conversation we had the day after my return from Geneva I made clear to you that without regard for the parliamentary situation I wanted to resign from the government. I now deem it in every way imperative that the question of my retirement be cleared up. I therefore beg you to recommend to the Reich president my discharge."

His withdrawal was considered as a removal of one of the difficult obstacles facing Chancellor Bruening in obtaining the parliamentary support the government will need when the reichstag convenes Oct. 13.

With the Social Democrats restless over wage reductions, the continual outbursts of dissatisfaction with Curtius from parties supporting the government made the cabinet's position acutely embarrassing.

Herr Curtius' successor is at present problematical, although Baron Von Neurath, ambassador to London, has been prominently mentioned.

FEAR MAIL PLANE PLUNGED INTO SEA

Craft Flying from Liner Bremen Thought To Have Met Disaster.

By The Associated Press

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 6—The crash of a plane believed to be the ship-to-shore "New York" carrying mail from the liner Bremen was reported today by William Faulkner, light keeper at Bur coat.

Whirling along in the darkness, the craft was heard to come down heavily on Cobequid bay, he said. An explosion followed and cries echoed over the bay, but when Faulkner and other rescuers towed out on the bay, they could find no trace of the men or plane.

A mail plane manned by Frich Simon, pilot and Rudolph Wauchkneckt, mechanic, took off from the North German Lloyd liner Bremen yesterday when she was 630 miles off Cape Race, N. F., in an attempt to get the mail to New York 20 hours faster than the liner could reach there.

Flying blind through fog and against headwinds, they reached Sydney, N. S., last night, and took to the air again about midnight.

BRITISH ELECTION SET FOR OCT. 27

Will Be First Since Labor Party Returned to Power in 1929.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 6—Parliament will be dissolved tomorrow and a general election will be held on Oct. 27 Prime Minister MacDonald announced today.

It will be the first general election since May 30, 1929, when Stanley Baldwin's conservative government was swept out of power and the Labor party returned to the helm for the first time in five years. The Liberal representative in parliament was radically reduced but it has held the balance of power throughout the period.

The announcement came after MacDonald had conferred with King George. He was understood to have acquainted the king with the decision of the cabinet and advised him to dissolve parliament at once.

The new parliament will be called into session early in November, it was said, and will probably sit for six weeks up to the Christmas recess. The election campaign is expected to begin at once with all three parties girding for an epochal struggle.

COUNCIL MEETING INVADED BY MOB

Police Called To Quell Demonstration in Cleveland.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 6 — A howling, disorderly crowd of 600 unemployed and Communistic sympathizers staged a demonstration in the city hall last night that delayed a regular session of the city council for half an hour and gave police a troublesome time.

The 600 were part of a crowd of 2,000 who marched to the city hall earlier in the evening, bearing signs demanding lower car fares, racial equality, and other matters.

Entering the council chamber, they booed lustily when Mayor John D. Marshall rapped for order. Police began ejecting the noisy, shunting them into a press room.

A number of patrolmen were scratched and several demonstrators were firmly handled before the mob decided to leave. Downstairs the demonstrators held a meeting, shouting and singing "solidarity forever."

Communists have gathered at council meetings a number of times, but last night's crowd was the largest and loudest.

Executive Committee

Executive committee members are J. F. Prendergast, Frank A. Huber, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, C. D. Schaffner, Hoke Donithen, C. B. King, Ray King, J. A. Schroeter, all of Marion, L. H. Brush of Salem, French Crow, and Geo. H. Van Fleet, all of Marion.

C. D. Schaffner of Marion was named a trustee, succeeding E. P. Mellon of New York, whose resignation because of his inability to attend meetings of the association, was accepted by the association yesterday. Mr. Mellon was supervising architect for the construction of the memorial.

The board of trustees, with the exception of Mr. Mellon, was reelected. Members are President Herbert Hoover, Calvin Coolidge, Charles E. Hughes, A. W. Mellon, H. M. Daugherty, Harry S. New, Frank A. Huber, Hubert Work, James J. Davis, J. S. Frelinghuysen, John A. Schroeter, D. R. Crissinger, Charles G. Dawes, Edward B. McLean, John Barton Payne, John Hays Hammond, George B. Christian Jr., Hoke Donithen, J. F. Prendergast, C. B. King, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer.

In the organization of the executive committee, Hoke Donithen was reelected chairman and C. D. Schaffner was reelected secretary.

Donithen Rewarded

Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, acting in behalf of the entire executive committee, presented Hoke Donithen with a valuable watch. Engraved on the watch were the words: "In Appreciation of Faithful Accomplishments, to Hoke Donithen from the Executive Committee of the Harding Memorial Association." In his presentation, Dr. Sawyer gave Mr. Donithen credit for handling most of the work of the association in connection with the erection and dedication of the memorial.

Accepting the token, Mr. Donithen replied that Brigadier General C. E. Sawyer was the one man responsible for the memorial, explaining that he headed the task of laying the ground work for the memorial, and headed the organization which raised money for its construction.

A belated contribution to the memorial fund, a check for $3,387.61 from New York hotel managers, was accepted and placed in the Harding home account to be used in a manner agreed on by Chairman Donithen and C. D. Schaffner, head of the Harding home and museum on Mt. Vernon avenue.

15 at Meeting

Mr. Donithen was authorized to negotiate for the purchase of two additional hand rails to be erected at ends of steps leading into the memorial.

Reports read yesterday show that $778,202.16 has been spent for the memorial and grounds to date. Cost of the dedication last June to the association was $2,130.17.

Fifteen men, all from Marion, attended the meeting yesterday.

ANCIENT JEWELS NOW IN MUSEUM

By International News Service

CHICAGO.—Gold earrings, approximately 2,500 years old and believed to have been worn by the women of Nebuchadnezzar's court, have just been received at the Field Museum of Natural History.

The jewelry was excavated from the ruins of the city of Kish, believed to have been the seat of the world's earliest civilization. The excavations were made by the Field Museum-Oxford university joint expedition to Mesopotamia.

The trinkets were found in Babylonian graves belonging to the period of King Nebuchadnezzar who ruled over both Babylon and Kish.

COURT NEWS

Asks Injunction

An injunction order to restrain T. A. McKinstry from transferring chattel property allegedly subject to an execution from the court to satisfy judgments against McKinstry held by the Collon Allsteel Body Co. is sought in a petition filed in common pleas court by the company yesterday.

In its petition, the company states that McKinstry is liable to it for $783.30, and that, unless restrained, he will dispose of property which should be levied on to satisfy this obligation. The company also asks that a previous conveyance of property allegedly made by McKinstry be held void, charging that the transfer was made to defraud the company. The law firm of Dowler & Davis represents the company.

Files Answer

A general denial of statements of the petition, and a specific denial that they are in any way indebted as charged in the petition are contained in the answer of Charles N. Howison and Helen Howison filed yesterday in the foreclosure action brought against them by C. D. Schaffner, receiver for the Citizens Building & Loan Co. The law firm of Donithen & Donithen represents the answering defendants.

SEPTEMBER SHOWS INCREASE IN DRUNKS

Police Report Lists 22 Arrests on Charges of Intoxication.

Arrests for intoxication which have shown a decline during the last several months were more plentiful during September, according to the report of the police department submitted to Safety Director Dr. T. E. Sonnanstine yesterday.

Out of 122 arrests made during the month, 22 were on intoxication charges. The report also shows that 356 traffic violators received tags and that 152 "lodgers" were provided with a night's lodging.

The police, during the month, listened to 613 complaints and responded to 309 calls. The report also shows that 157 meals had been served.

Five automobiles and 12 bicycles were stolen during the month with five automobiles and nine bicycles recovered. The value of the recovered cars was given as $1,600 and the nine bicycles at $135. Other merchandise recovered totaled $1,100 bringing the value of the recovered property to $2,835.

Included in the 122 arrests were eight for reckless driving and four for petit larceny. Four runaway boys were picked up by the police and five by railroad detectives during the month.

Return from Meeting.

Safety Director and Mrs T. E. Sonnanstine returned Saturday from Toronto, Canada where the safety director attended the thirty-third annual conference of the American Hospital Association held in that city last week. The increased demand for the care of the indigent sick, the decreasing revenues received from patients and the diminishing income from the philanthropic sources were among the problems up for discussion at the conference.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Oct. 7

A DAY of radical and far-reaching importance is predicted from the powerful sway of major planets. It is probable that there will be an opportunity of quite unexpected or unsought change of the affairs, bringing new surroundings and possible change in employment. In any event there may be overtures from those in places of power and authority, which should be considered but not rashly or too precipitately embraced. Sign papers wisely and beware of schemes or treachery.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of far-reaching effect upon the future destiny. An abrupt offer from those in places of authority or with important corporations is possible, this leading to change of employment and environment. These advantages, however, should be calmly and judiciously embraced, with cautious signing of papers and alertness against trickiness, or schemes. A child born on this day may have many excellent qualities fitting it for power and position in life. It may have an eventful and adventurous career.

Notable nativity: John Alexander, painter.

A WOMAN'S HOME IS HER CASTLE

It Should Be Modernized

The Marion Star

Cooking School

How can you save on the grocery bill? How much time do you waste in your house-keeping? How many miles do you walk in your kitchen? These are questions which the old-fashioned housekeeper could not answer because she had not heard of labor-saving devices and time-saving equipment. The Lecturer will not only point out their superior qualities over the old-time kitchen accessories and methods but she will use these new tools in her cooking demonstrations; ranges that speak for themselves — they know just how hot they must be for a sponge cake; refrigerators which help prepare the dinner and make the desserts and salads in their special compartments; little pans and mixers, cutlery and kettles which are modern, quick, simple, serviceable and available for every woman.

Miss Edna M. Ferguson

The equipment used by the lecturer may be examined on the stage after each session. See for yourself how the modern kitchen saves in cookery.

The far-reaching benefits of such a course of lectures by so notable an authority makes this Cooking School an especially worth-while event.

The pleasing personality of the lecturer supplemented by her refreshing humor makes the sessions interesting as well as instructive. The Cooking School is free to every woman in this community, and there is nothing for sale. Come early and be sure of a good seat. Bring your pencil and notebook with you so that you may make notes of the lecturer's suggestions for future use in your home. Free recipes will be distributed daily to every woman who attends the School.

BRING THE KIDDIES!

Young children need not keep you away from the Cooking School.

As usual, we have arranged a nursery for their care. It will be in charge of Mrs. Beatrice Secord.

It is on the same floor as the auditorium in an adjoining room.

Bring them every day.

PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEM

Through the kindness of the Monarch Printing & Supply Co., Cooking School visitors are assured of being able to hear every word of every lecture.

Microphones are conveniently arranged on the demonstration platform and loud speakers will carry every word to all parts of the auditorium distinctly.

Grist for the Mill.

That part of the voting public which sits high up in the gallery to watch the political spectacle and makes or breaks the participants thereof by its smiles or frowns has a good show in prospect. Each of the nation's twenty-five Democratic governors is to have an opportunity to grind some political grist right in front of the amplifiers that surround Washington—amplifiers that have to be cradled in blankets sometimes to keep them from cracking under the babel.

The first governor to bring a little bag of grist for the political mill will be Governor Ritchie, of Maryland. He will be the guest in Washington, as all the governors who take the opportunity will be, of the Women's National Democratic club. Mr. Ritchie will approach the hopper boldly to dump in his corn. He is a potential candidate for the presidency, and things are expected of him.

Next may come Governor White, who could cut a less dashing figure than Governor Ritchie, perhaps, but who could command just as much attention. It is not known definitely that Governor White will go to the mill; if he does it will be the nation's first opportunity to look over another potential candidate for the presidency.

And then, of course, on some auspicious occasion, like Jefferson day, Governor Roosevelt, of New York, will go down to Washington to be quoted by the press and photographed by the news reel men. Where others assume importance as potential candidates, he assumes greater importance as a potent candidate.

The others, some of whom will come eagerly and some of whom would just as soon stay at home, won't attract so much attention, but their contributions will be welcome, one and all. It takes grist to make the old political mill creak and crackle—grist to make the dust fly—and grist to make the meal that keeps political parties alive and healthy.

The Interstate Commerce commission has held a young woman of Maryland responsible for the deaths of two enginemen who were showered with flaming gasoline when their engine hit the car which had stalled on the railroad track and been abandoned by her. Well, why not?

The Baby Killer.

Few, if any, gangster crimes have been published more widely than New York's baby killing last summer. At home and abroad people sensitive to social wrongs were shocked severely by the incident. Every one was curious to see what kind of degraded human being it would be who could level a gun at a group of children playing on the sidewalk because covering back of them was the target—the gangster marked for death.

New York police have a suspect, a desperado of whose guilt they are certain. He is an inferior appearing hoodlum with a criminal record that goes back twelve years to the time when he was eleven years old. He has been fog to the police hounds from the day he was able to scamper but, since the times that he served short sentences as a child for various crimes, has been too smart for them. When discovered, he was disguised. He denies everything, but the disguise looks suspicious.

That's the kind of degraded human being who would kill a baby. That's the kind of person whose criminal tendencies are so strong and whose intellect is so feeble that he would detect nothing wrong in shooting through a group of children to get an enemy. That's the kind of hoodlum, elevated to a position of power by the ease with which his kind can make money, that is at the bottom of the nation's crime problem. Society doesn't know what to do with its young hoodlums, and can't do what it knows should be done with its grownup hoodlums.

Burglars entered a residence out in Owensville, Indiana, and not only ransacked the house, but also made off with the family police dog. The criminal world is manifesting a degree of efficiency which is positively startling.

Heywood Broun holds the conviction that it is monstrous to suppose that labor is the highest goal of man, and leisure little better than an affliction. If Heywood will look about a bit he will probably find any number of people who have tried the leisure end of the proposition who are wholly given to the view that leisure is an affliction and labor a boon.

It's seldom that a policeman looks good to a burglar, but a couple looked that way, some nights since up in Chicago, shortly after he entered a home occupied by two dozen roomers, eighteen of whom are candidates for college football teams. When the component parts of the avalanche which buried him were dragged off and he had regained his powers of speech, his first remark on glimpsing two bluecoats called by the landlady was: "Oh, I'm so glad you're here." No more college boys for him!

Dwight W. Morrow.

The United States needed Dwight W. Morrow. It had confidence that, somehow, his presence in the senate would be the same kind of boon to good government that his presence in Mexico, as United States ambassador, had been a boon to good diplomacy.

Mr. Morrow was an eminent financier before he turned to politics. In his early thirties he enjoyed a wide reputation for his work in organizing and financing corporations. His outstanding ability brought him to the attention of J. P. Morgan & Co., in which firm he became a partner in 1914. Subsequently, he performed valuable services in connection with the gigantic task of financing the World war and the reconstruction after it.

His excellent work as ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Mexico during the Coolidge administration lies more in the realm of feeling than in the details of the official record. Mexico had reached a point of irritation where it did not expect much from any American ambassador any more. Mr. Morrow, a "dollar diplomat" if ever there was one, changed this dangerous attitude almost over night by his winning personality and his willingness to believe implicitly in the government and people of Mexico. He won Mexico by getting the Mexican point of view on Mexican troubles.

His resignation was accepted philosophically because it was known that he aspired to be elected to the senate. So popular was he that no one doubted for a moment that he would be, and no one was disappointed. His conduct in the last session of the congress, characterized by intelligent modesty, marked him still more plainly as a man who promised much for the composite character of the nation's upper house. He further distinguished himself by performing valuable services as a member of the American commission at the London naval parley.

Perhaps he won his greatest popularity by his fearless exposition of his views on the Eighteenth amendment. Mr. Morrow was an advocate of states' rights and would have been extremely valuable in the controversy that is bound to take place over the amendment in the new congress. He had a calm and judicious attitude that qualified him as a philosophic statesman. He was a loyal party man, but his first obligation was to his own convictions.

It is rarely, indeed, that an individual attains such extraordinary prominence Mr. Morrow had done his share, but at the age of fifty-eight he still was capable of doing much more. The mourning of the nation over his death is pathetically sincere.

The Democratic national committee owes its chairman, John J. Raskob, $355,250. The distressing phase of the thing to its membership is that the Hon. John J. hasn't shown the slightest indication that he is either a cancellationist or a champion of the moratorium idea.

How He Talks!

William Hale Thompson, who will be remembered as "Big Bill," former mayor of Chicago, is still talking. What he has to say is no longer considered of great value, but it's the same old brand of tripe.

Calvin Coolidge will be the next President of the United States, he says. Len Small will be the next governor of Illinois. Prohibition was "put over" on the United States so that England could make a billion dollars a year out of this country. And, in closing, of course, "Mayor Cermak just isn't big enough for the job. That's the reason Chicago doesn't have enough money to pay for its schools."

This from the man who maladministered Chicago's government off and on for a decade until a protest vote ousted him. This from the arch enemy of King George V and the patron saint of American gangster culture. This from the nominal Republican whose own party members turned him out.

But, and this is important, former Mayor Thompson has a sympathetic audience of Chicago admirers who have maintained him in office for a good many years and may put him there again before he dies. How he talks and how they love it!

Sir Ernest Wild holds that the legal profession is unpopular because it has to bear the mistakes of both the law-makers and the law-breakers. It possibly hasn't occurred to Sir Ernest that one element of the legal profession has been very influential in the production of the former and another element in the production of the latter.

Editorial Opinion.

LENGTH OF LIFE IN THIS COUNTRY.

If we are to accept the authority of the census bureau, the average length of life is increasing in the United States. In a report just given out it is stated that there are fewer youngsters and more persons of forty-five and over than were counted ten years ago. The population of the nation is estimated at 122,775,046. No less than 72,943,624 are "twenty-one or over," as compared with 60,856,520 in 1920. It is interesting to note the increase in the number of older persons. For instance, we have 13,013,083 who range from forty-five to fifty-four, over eight million from sixty-five to seventy-four and 1,913,196 of seventy-five and over. It is not uncommon to hear of men over eighty who are still "in harness."

The census bureau does not attempt to explain this along scientific lines. We are told that a considerable number of those who have passed the age of sixty-five are either retired farmers or other persons who have gone to country villages to spend the remaining years of their lives. If they can find "quiet retreats" they are very fortunate. The average American of today finds himself living amid a constant din and racket. Many of our people may get nervous prostration, but most of them manage to linger on in spite of the noise, if we are to believe the official figures. How are we to account for the increased number of old men and women? For one thing we are living in a more healthful age. Proper sanitation is now looked upon as a duty of the state, and as a consequence we have fewer epidemics than in older times.

One suggestion, probably made in a facetious spirit, is that more persons now pass the three score year and ten line because of the gradual growth of the old age pension system. But there may be a modicum of truth in the notion. The man or woman who can look forward to spending his declining years beneath his own vine and fig tree without the fear of want may acquire that habit of tranquility which often increases the average span of life.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE WORLD: "THOSE GOLD DUST TWINS CAN PUT MY HOUSE IN ORDER."

Sao Paulo's Reptile Farm.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

In Sao Paulo, the great seaport which was in the heart of the district where last year's Brazilian revolution took place, is to be found one of the oddest farms in the world—the reptile farm, devoted to the saving of human life.

Each year hundreds of people are killed in Brazil by the venomous jararaca and it is to cut down this mortality that the government has established the snake farm to which, by law, all good citizens must ship all the venomous and non-venomous snakes they find.

From these creatures, employes of the farm, drain or "milk" the venom and from it make the valuable serum which is used as an antitoxin by people who have been bitten by a reptile. About twenty snakes a day, transported free by the railways, are received. The farm lies about a half-hour's ride from Sao Paulo proper and each day thrill-seekers can be found outside the moat, low wall and iron railing which is all that separates the spectator from the death-dealing monsters. The snake pens are low, half-spherical cement igloos about four feet high.

All the snakes to be found in Brazil are kept on this farm. Besides gathering serum, the farm employes breed and distribute long black snakes which are not deadly to humans and are effective destroyers of the jararaca, its natural enemy.

In some pens the keepers astonish the onlookers by toying with snakes that, like the black snake, appear more vicious and dangerous than the jararaca.

The snake farm was started by Dr. Vital Brazil and later taken over by the Brazilian government. Since its inception the experts in charge unsuccessfully have been endeavoring to find an anti-toxin for the bite of the coluibrine. These are "ring" and "coral" snakes. The others like the jararaca and the rattlesnake come under the classification of vipers.

The main difficulty of treating the victims of viper attacks is that the afflicted person can not always describe his attacker.

When this happens only a general remedy can be used and this is often not as effective as the specific serum which can be injected when the reptile can be satisfactorily identified.

It was Friday, October 6.

The Hebrews of the city began the observance of Succoth or the Jewish Feast of the Tabernacle.

The Tally Wag club gave the first of a series of social entertainments which they intended to maintain through the fall and winter.

The body of W. French Inskeep, aged about sixty-eight, who resided near Essex was found floating in the new channel of the Little Scioto river about 200 feet east of the bridge on the Prendergast road. It was estimated that the body had been in the water for almost a week.

The Portugese Royalists met a severe defeat at the hands of the government forces and it was thought that the force of the revolution was broken.

The first week of the war between Italy and Turkey closed with all the tricks thus far taken by the Italians. Tripoli fell to the Italian forces and the entire coast of Cyrenaica as well as the Mediterranean, Adriatic and Red sea coasts were dominated by the Italian navy.

Miss Gertrude Keightly was given a surprise by a large company of friends at her home on Frederick street in honor of her fourteenth birthday.

A bitter municipal war was on in Kenton. Twenty-four arrests were made as a result of political fights on the charges of operating speakeasies. Twenty-three men and one woman were taken into custody.

Here is a Scotch anecdote that's different. Among the train passengers were an elderly Highlander and a young lad. The former was holding a watch in his hand and was studying it with intense interest. Suddenly he seemed satisfied and he beckoned the conductor to him.

"What is it?" the latter asked.

"I want to pay the rest of my grandson's fare," replied the Highlander, "he has just become twelve years old."

Beware of Anger.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

It is never advisable to become violently angry or unduly excited. The calm person is the one to be envied. His health is usually better than that of the average man. He lives longer than his more excitable brother.

On occasions I have told you how the stomach functions and how readily it is influenced by the nerves that supply its tissues. It is so complicated in structure and function there is no wonder it gets upset at times.

Now comes the statement of scientists who claim that rage and fear are fat consumers. This means that another factor is known to influence health.

Recent experiments on animals conducted at Yale university show that under strong emotion the blood absorbs unusual quantities of fuel. It was observed that the emotions, such as rage and fear, cause a burning up of fuel in the form of fat.

By careful study it was found that the fat content of the blood rises rapidly during deep emotion. Under such conditions the amount of fat consumed is tremendous, causing a marked loss to the body.

The fuel in the form of fat is stored under the skin. As a result of emotion, it is liberated into the bloodstream. It seems probable that the tissues of the body are given increased amounts of fat to supply the energy necessary for such states of mind.

From these studies it is logical to assume that the more emotional a person is the more fat he burns. The less emotional he is, the more fat he stores.

Our everyday observations would tend to confirm this theory. As a rule, certainly, the stout person is less emotional and less likely to become angered. Perhaps he is fat because he does not waste his body fuel by pouring it into the fire of anger.

It does seem to be the case, too, that many a person looks pinched and drawn after a spell of weeping, rage or fear. Anyhow, it is an interesting thing to think about.

Of course, it is difficult to control the emotions, but you will admit that anger never accomplishes any good. By exercising self-control, sudden outbursts of displeasure can be kept in check.

Your health and certainly your popularity will be greatly benefited by such control. If you are easily vexed try to overcome this weakness.

To me anger is a poison. It upsets digestion, causes intense fatigue, and results in actual physical pains. I can not doubt that it is damaging to the body. It sets the heart to pounding and does all sorts of disagreeable things.

I would not have anybody so stolid as never to have the pleasure of joyous emotion. But the unpleasant effects of anger are damaging indeed.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

L.B. Q—What causes severe cramps in the feet and legs?

A—This may be due to a number of causes. It would be wise to have a careful examination.

A Sufferer, Q—What do you advise for eczema?

A—Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

MRS. B.R. Q—What is pyelitis? Is there a cure? Is it serious?

A—Pyelitis is an inflammation of part of the kidney. Whether or not it can be definitely cleared up depends upon the extent and seriousness of the trouble. Careful treatment will often bring about results. A kidney condition is always more or less serious, but can usually be helped by proper treatment. Have your doctor outline specific treatment and advice.

The Man in the Moon.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The moon is one of the most interesting of the celestial objects as a subject for study, since it is the nearest of them to the earth. Many curious things are known about the moon, but the chiefest is that the moon is a dead planet. Recent researches seem to indicate that there may be some very hardy and stubby vegetation on the moon, although this is doubtful. The moon is generally believed by astronomers to be without life.

Among the most interesting features of the moon's surface are the great craters which are seen in photographs with remarkable distinctness and detail. One of them, named Copernicus in honor of the famous astronomer, has a mountain wall two miles high—its diameter being fifty-six miles. There are estimated to be some 30,000 of these craters on the hemisphere which is always facing the earth. Some of them have diameters of as much as 100 miles, and depths of 10,000 feet.

One of the most singular and puzzling of astronomical questions is, Why do we always see the "Man in the Moon"—that is, why does the moon always turn the same face to us? While the earth makes one revolution on its axis every twenty-four hours, the moon takes about thirty days to make one revolution. In consequence the sun shines on the moon nearly fifteen of our days while the moon is making one revolution. The surface rocks of the moon, on the side facing the sun are heated almost to the boiling point of water. Within two hours after the darkness falls on the moon, the freezing point is reached on the dark side of the moon; and during the course of the fifteen days the temperature on the dark side has fallen to between 200 and 300 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

Of course scientists long ago recognized that while the moon makes one revolution around the earth, it is rotating exactly once on its axis. But what is the reason for this? Surely there must be some stabilizing influence at work, to maintain this very peculiar relation.

Three principles are at work: gravity; a heavier and a lighter end—the heavier end responding more strongly to the gravitational pull, and a resisting medium sufficient to give the heavier end an advantage and cause it to assume and maintain a position nearer the earth than the lighter end. It was the late Thomas Chrowder Chamberlain joint author with Forest Ray Moulton of the planetesimal hypothesis, who suggested that, by the accretion of matter, the vast basin areas of the moon, the side turned toward us, is the heavier. — Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 6—Time and shifting politics have brought about some curious situations in Washington—highly interesting to delve into and study.

There is one in the house of representatives. Almost any day that congress is in session there may be observed on the floor a short and swarthy man keenly alive to what is going on around him.

He is as likely as not to get up and make a speech in which there are flattering references to the United States.

Yet this man was at one time a bearer of arms against the country he now praises—one of Uncle Sam's bitterest enemies. Pedro Guevara, "the gentleman of the Philippines," led an army against this country during the insurrection. Now he is resident commissioner for the islands, entitled to a seat in congress.

But perhaps an even more curious example is to be found out Sixteenth street in the diplomatic section of the capital where is located the Nicaraguan legation.

It hasn't been so long ago that the tall, kindly and scholarly man who represents Nicaragua in Washington—Juan Bautista Sacasa—was a veritable thorn in the flesh of administration officials in the capital.

He was a stormy petrel in the Nicaraguan fuss while Coolidge was president. Sacasa literally bombarded the Coolidge policy in Nicaragua at long and short range.

Some of his ammunition got into the Congressional Record.

Most of it reached American papers and made some unpleasant reading for Secretary Kellogg and others in the state department.

Sacasa, it will be remembered, is the Liberal ex-vice president of Nicaragua. Now he is in Washington dealing in all friendliness with the country whose policy he once so violently denounced.

He cheerfully accepted the honor from his own former military chieftain, and there can be no question that he is welcome in his new role.

Sacasa's assignment was the happy ending to a troublesome situation.

His party seems now firmly entrenched not only in Nicaragua, but in Washington as well. And the election which brought it about was supervised by the same marines whose landing Sacasa so vigorously denounced four years ago.

So for the time being at least the clamor that Uncle Sam is playing favorites among the political parties in Central America and is operating on a pure dollar diplomacy basis seems to have been stilled.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 6—Ladies Eving lightly have found the usual crop of White Way wastrels exhausted. Luxury lads of the "Flash" era now find it difficult to pay rent on the high-up-and-all-the-way-back hall room. Their extravagances depended entirely upon a rising market.

Thus have many cloistered cuties suddenly turned to rich Chinese and Japanese spenders. The recent disappearance of a wealthy Jap and news he lavished a quarter million on a platinum temptress was only made conspicuous because of ensuing thick headlines.

Instead of an isolated lisson, it was only one of many. There is a certain block in the west Seventies ramparted with ornate apartment-houses and filled with lustrous nests for those dizzy damozels skimming like wild geese over the gray marshes of life.

While Chinese are in the minority in such attachments, there are quite a number known to elevator boys, with behind-the-back grins, as "The Mysterious Mr. Wu." The Chinese has a firmer grip on his purse strings and is not inclined to cut capers.

But the play-boy Jap is a "Good Time Charlie." His preference is almost solely for bright blondes, a choice said to have resulted in such a sudden switch from henna to platinum among the Broadway dolls who live to the eternality of their now.

There are obscure restaurants with booths that for a time catered to such companionships, but lately the seclusion has been dropped. The "ghost girls" are seen in public places—the theater, smart cafe and strolling along the various promenades.

Incidentally, I am told the only sales of importance in high-class jewelry establishments this summer were to Orientals for Occidental inamoratas. And I like the story of the smacked maid in a speakeasy, who, airing a current headache, cried: "I'm sick of tightwads. What I crave is a nice Yellow Peril."

There is to me a dull charm about Central park when leaves fall and broad meadows become acres of withered tuft. A bench on one of the rocky outcrops behind a circle of bushes becomes a bastion of meditation. Yonder is the breathless skyline—the ghostly radiant spire that is Pierre's, the gilt pinnacle of the Sherry-Netherlands, the frosty facade of the Savoy and the splash of the Plaza's green roof. It's a swell perch to think up pieces one never writes.

Spring, of course, has its soft sorcery, but I believe melancholy days unloose the sturdiest thoughts. In the spring a young man's fancy, etc. But in the fall dreamers are practical. I have no statistics but I'll wager the best books are written between August and December. And that the finest paintings have been spread on canvas in a like period.

There are other miracles of mankind's bravado that seem more apparent in the fall. I think at the moment of the young man I saw skipping out of the St. Moritz this morning. In butter bean shaped riding pants of bright yellow, an equally bright green coat, highly-polished boots and silvered jangling spur, he was a hatless and truant Pegasus with a bothouse red rose behind his right ear.

* * *

There was a squirrel, too, in the park that followed me along on the asphalt, scurrying to a bench top or darting back into the hedges at intervals. When I sat down hoping he would hop on my shoulder as they often do with friendly strangers he would disappear. When I started walking again he would follow. Not until I got home and told my wife did it appear significant. I might have known there would be a smart crack about what always attracts squirrels.

A Question in 1808.

BY J. M. GALBRAITH.

It is very interesting to note that a decision by the legislature of Ohio, that the courts had a right to set aside an act of that legislature on constitutional grounds, was based on an act of the general assembly giving final jurisdiction to justices of the peace in certain cases. Calvin Pease, George Tod and Samuel Huntington of the Third district court held it unconstitutional because it deprived citizens of the right of trial by jury.

The house presented two of these judges—Pease and Tod—on impeachment charges for presuming to set aside an act of the legislature. Huntington was not included for the reason that subsequent to the decision he had resigned to accept the office of governor and was then filling that office. It was in the seventh general assembly—1808-09.

The senate voted in both cases, fifteen to nine, in favor of finding the judges guilty. The constitution requiring a two-thirds vote to sustain impeachment charges, the judges escaped by just one vote. The act so set aside was passed in 1806, two years after the state was organized, and seems to have been the original law providing for the office of justice of the peace. Incidentally, it would appear that thus early in the history of the state it was held that the right of trial by jury was inviolate.

In no other state nor in the United States had this question been passed upon before. Three years later United States courts took the same position as to acts of congress. It was left for these early lawyers in the wilds of the young state of Ohio to think the question through and decide it as it has been everywhere held since.

George Tod was the father of Governor David Tod. All three of these judges were from Connecticut, and Tod and Huntington were graduates of Yale. Tod and Pease came from the same town in Connecticut, Suffield, while Huntington was from Norwalk.

Impeachment proceedings against judicial officers, now very rare in legislative history, were very frequently resorted to in the early days of the state, and it was a rare legislature that did not have at least one case of the kind to consider.

CAPONE SAYS HE'S PREJUDICE VICTIM

Confident of Acquittal If He Gets "Fair Trial," He Says.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—Alphonse Capone's challenge to the federal government to try to convict him as an income tax evader reached the showdown stage today, with the gang chief expressing confidence of acquittal if, as he put it, he is given a "fair trial."

"And by fair trial I mean that jurors receive the evidence with open mind and reserve their judgment of my guilt or innocence until all the facts are in," the gang lord said on the eve of his trial in which the prosecution alleges he failed to pay $215,080 on a six-year income of $1,035,654.

"But," he added, "if I'm unfortunate enough to get a typical American jury, I will be in the hands of men who will convict me because my name is Alphonse Capone, regardless of the nature of the testimony.

"I have never answered any charge or defended myself before, but I don't think it's right for a man to go to jail to satisfy an antipathy that has grown up around a name. If I must be judged I want to be judged as a human being, as myself, not as a spook born of a million minds."

The "spook" reference was to a contention by Capone that he is only a mythical figure in the minds of the public, who really has had no existence in fact.

"If people," he said, "would only remember that I am just 32 years old, and that it is utterly impossible for one human being to do all the things I am charged with doing, they would see how ridiculous this opinion of me is."

Throw Away Your Corn Plasters

Here's a better way to keep those miserable, stinging, painful corns from hurting! That gets rid of the corns themselves—without drawing a drop of blood! No cutting, no pulling out, no pumicing.

Just rub your corns briskly with Moone's Emerald Oil at bedtime, if you want to get rid of them quickly. Binding the part with a cloth soaked in the oil will further speed the process.

Takes the sting right out—soothes your tortured feet at once. Corns won't hurt next day, either. And in a day or two they'll all be gone for good. They just shrivel up and scale off—as easy as anything

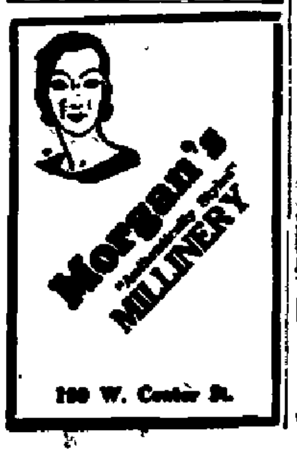

Henney & Cooper say they won't bother you any more but money back if they do.—Adv.

Worrying About— Blood Pressure?

At the first sign of danger, take a laxative. Cut down on alcohol, coffee and tobacco. Eat lightly for several days. Take a tablespoonful of mentha pepsin before meals to make digestion as easy as possible. Keep quiet until your stomach is settled and the dizzy spells have passed.

Have your physician check your blood pressure at frequent intervals. Continue to protect yourself by taking mentha pepsin before every meal. (You can get Dare's Mentha Pepsin from Henney & Cooper or any other reliable druggist.) Avoid heavy food and too heavy meals—especially at night.

Do this faithfully and the chances are that you will prevent—or at least postpone—the danger of a stroke—Adv.

As I have re... before, old dear, your brain ... fast that it dazzles me."

... was talking thus light... ...esult of the emotional strain under which he had been laboring. I was sure. But Lillian was paying no attention to his nonsense. Her eyes were sparkling with joy of the mental discovery and she spoke quickly, enthusiastically, ignoring her husband's compliment.

A Slender Chance

"Oh! I see," she said, "you think he'll talk in Chinese, and that between Madge's memory and the fact that the shorthand system is based on sound, we'll be able together to make something out of what otherwise would be a mess. All right, I'll be with you just as soon as I get paper and pencil. Will you want any?" she turned to me.

I hesitated. It seemed like boasting to refuse, but I knew the queer tricks of the uncanny memory which is mine.

"I'd rather trust my memory," I said. "If I try to put down the sounds as I hear them. I—I can't explain——"

"It's perfectly simple," Mr. Underwood said, as Lillian went around in the little room off the library for the paper and pencils. "That memory of yours is like a mechanical train. If you wind it up and send it along its accustomed track, it will go beautifully, but if you try to tow it along with a string, you'll have trouble.

"The Lord He knows. I hate to ask you to do this, Lady Fair," he went on. "Your brain has had about all the setting-up exercises it needs. You could do with a rest instead of a stunt like this."

"Don't talk to me about rest," I said, tensely. "Don't tell anybody, but I've just been eating my heart out to think that I had no part in this big job you have on hand. I'm so glad of the chance to be of a little use."

"Don't worry about that part of it," Mr. Underwood said a little grimly. "You'll be of use, all right, if you can repeat even one or two of the words he probably will say in his delirium."

"How can you make use of repeated sounds like that?" I asked curiously.

"I have a most remarkable Chinese friend in New York," Harry Underwood said. "He can't get out here, but you and Lil can go in to see him in four hours time. If you just sit down and say the sounds over as you have heard them he will take them down and translate them for us into English. You see how much depends on this, don't you?"

"I suppose, you think perhaps you will get a line on the men who have done this?" I asked.

"That's what I'm praying for," he said. "It's a slender chance, I grant you, but it's our only one.

We followed him into the library where the surgeon and Katherine were bending over the figure on the cot, not inert now but uttering little moans of pain.

Dicky stood a little pace apart and as we entered he sprang forward, took me by the arm and escorted me to a chair by the bedside, so near the surgeon that I was afraid I was inconveniencing him, but he moved aside quickly and gave me a smile of encouragement which made his face look far different than it had when he was discussing the emergency operation with Mr. Underwood. Evidently in the thrill of the successful work he had done, he had lost his gluminess. That he knew our errand was patent also when he moved aside and made way for Lillian whose chair her husband brought to the bedside next to mine.

"I imagine it will not be long before he will speak," he said; "but I do not think he will recover consciousness for some time if at all."

"You think there is little hope?" Lillian asked.

"Little, is the word," the surgeon said, a little grimly. "I won't say 'no hope.' He has a fighting chance now which he did not have before. I can do nothing more for him just now, neither can Mrs. Bickett. We will wait at the foot of the bed here while you see what you can gather from his murmuring. There is no doubt that his first delirious words will be in Chinese."

His prophecy came true but strangely enough the two words which first came from the lips of the delirious man were understood by both Lillian and myself, for that first murmur was a low wailing call:

"Lee Chow! Lee Chow! Lee Chow!"

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TUESDAY, and even with the window closed all night it was coolish, so that it was a good thing me and Jubilee had each other to sleep with.

When I had got up and let him down by the rope in his teeth I sat on the floor by the window quite a long time watching it get lighter and watching the clouds flying past, and thinking how funny it is that we have winter and summer, and Eskimos have nothing but winter and natives of Africa have nothing but summer. When I get big I will study astronomy and learn all about the reason for everything and then maybe I can find some way to do something about it. If I could fix it up so that bananas would grow in our front yard I bet my mother and everyone would be pleased.

When I had put on my short britches and went down and done my milking and came in the house, I asted my mother if she didn't wish it was always warm here so that munkeys would be jumping from limb to limb of all the trees, and she said she didn't; she said with so many boys and girls around she hadn't noticed the absence of munkys to any considerable extent. Then my ant said, "No, with all the boys and grandpa around nobody needs to feel that the monkey crop is at all short." My grandfather just said, "Miaow! Who stepped on your tail?" and my ant just looked at him, and then my mother said there was others she could name that sometimes make munkys of themselves.

My ant said, "Are you alluding to me by any chance?" and my mother said she wasn't alluding to nobody, she was just throwing a lot of old shoes around and whoever they fitted could put them on. So then I thought I had better go to school, so we all took out our cows and came back to school, and after that we went out to the railroad bridge and the girls had went to play with the twins, so we could go in swimming, so we undressed on the bank and then went out on the bridge and jumped in, because when we went in that way we got ducked quick and that is better than going in an inch at a time and stopping and hollering after every inch.

The Lost Bag of Tripe said he would stay out and watch our clothes, so with all of us running around him and getting out of our clothes he didn't notice that Nibs hid behind the bushes, so when we were having a good time and almost froze stiff, Nibs hollered and we looked and the Lost Bag of Tripe had been chewing our shirts and Nibs had caught him. We ran and got him and hung him up on the bridge and we was swinging him back and forth to throw him in, and a passenger came around the curve so we all had to jump in with him. It is a good thing we had learnt the Lost Bag of Tripe to swim; if we hadn't we couldn't ever throw him in, and that way we'd miss a lot of fun.

Tomorrow night the week will be half gone. I should worry.

SAM

BY FREEMAN LINCOLN

CHAPTER 20
Bought But Undelivered

"THERE!" Eugenie beamed and pointed a triumphant finger at Nelson. "What did I tell you, Mr. Alderson? I told you that your sister was a sensible young woman and that she'd catch on quick as a wink. I told you that she wouldn't make any trouble!"

Sam had a strange feeling of detachment. From what seemed a great distance, she heard her own voice. "I won't make any trouble. Just tell me what you have to say. Tell it as quickly as possible."

"That's right. We'll just hand out the facts and we'll make it as snappy as we can. I believe in that." The widow leaned back in her chair. "Well, in the first place, I never thought much of Mr. Alderson's invention. I had it investigated and I decided it wasn't any good — much too expensive to manufacture. On account of that I couldn't believe my ears when you told me that somebody had paid him a lot of money for it. It didn't sound right. It sounded fishy, and the more I thought about it the fishier it seemed. I made up my mind something was wrong, and I made up my mind to find out what it was."

"And you did?" Sam inquired tonelessly. "You must have, or we wouldn't be sitting here now."

"I did." Eugenie nodded. "At least my agents did. My agents are a clever bunch, Miss Sherrill, and I don't mind saying they had a hard job this time. The A. A. Burke Manufacturing company was a tough nut to crack. It took a lot of cagey work to get a man in their office, and it took a lot more cagey work for him to find out anything after he was there. He spent days and days—"

"Please, Mrs. Frye!" Sam interrupted firmly. "Do you mind my saying that I'm not interested in the way this thing was discovered? I'm not. I just want to know what was discovered. Is it—has Fourth been—dishonest?"

"Dishonest! 'I should say not!" The widow was shocked. "Nothing of the kind! Mr. Alderson thought, and he still thinks, that everything is just as advertised."

"Oh." Sam shrugged. "Then that's, something, I was afraid."

"There's nothing for you to be afraid of," said Eugenie severely, "I should think you'd know that your father isn't that kind of man. He has just been deceived. He's been tricked all along the line."

"Has he? How?"

"Well, its this way. The Burke Manufacturing company aren't behind your father at all. He has an office at their place, and they sign the checks they give him, but all that is just a blind. The Burke crowd is just acting as agent for somebody else. Somebody else is doing the paying."

"But why?" Sam was bewildered now, and incredulous. "If the invention isn't any good, why would anybody pay him a lot of money for it and pretend that it is going to be put on the market? Who would be such a fool?"

"That's the funny part," Eugenie glanced at Nelson. "That's why I came to your brother instead of you. When I found out who was doing this thing, and why he was doing it, I decided I'd better talk to your brother first."

"But why?" Sam was still more bewildered. "I don't understand! Who could be such a fool? Nobody could! Absolutely nobody, unless—" Sam suddenly went pale. She seemed to shrink back in her chair, and there was a long moment for absolute silence. Then she spoke in a small, strained voice. "Unless it could be—Peak Abbott! He isn't Peak Abbott is it, Nelson? Tell me it isn't!"

Nelson's eyes shifted from hers and he coughed nervously. Eugenie said quietly: "Yes. You're right, Mr. Abbott is the man."

There was another long period of silence: "Peak Abbott? But why? Why should he do such a thing?"

Nelson stirred impatiently. "It's nothing to get excited about, Sam, and it's nothing so very terrible. It's perfectly understandable why Peak did it."

"Is it?"

"Yes. Peak realized that we were poor and that being poor wasn't much fun for you. He wanted to help you out, and he did it the only way he could. He knew that you'd never knowingly take money from him. Personally, I think he was darn generous, and pretty clever into the bargain."

Sam heard herself laughing. "Clever? I suppose so. Very clever indeed! So all this time we've been living like kings on Mr. Abbott's money. Marvelous! Superb!"

"See here, Sam," said Nelson with a frown, "I can't see that it's anything for you to worry about. If you'd been the only one concerned, I never would have told you. It doesn't matter about you, because you're going to worry him anyhow. It's the rest of us that are in sort of a bad position. When you come to think of it, we've just been accepting charity."

"That's right." Sam's eyes widened. "We've been accepting charity. We've been charity patients all the time!"

After that both Nelson and Eugenie did a lot of talking. They urged her to tell Fourth everything and to make him resign his position at once. They said that Fourth must also return whatever money he had received and had not spent. They suggested a number of things that Sam must do, and Sam agreed to them all. She would have agreed to almost anything at that time, in order to get away.

When she left the apartment she got into her car and headed it toward the open country. Her face expressionless, she drove slowly and carefully, without the slightest knowledge of where she was going. For an hour she followed a broad cement highway that seemed to lead nowhere. Then she turned the car around and retraced her path until she found herself in the city once more. It was just dusk when she pulled up at the curb opposite a small drugstore and shut off her motor.

To the clerk behind the soda fountain in the drugstore she said: "Will you get me a sheet of writing paper, please—and an envelope —and a pencil?"

The clerk stared at her and then went away. Returning, he laid what she had requested on the marble counter and accepted her money. He continued to stare as she climbed up on one of the high stools and pulled off her gloves. Then he said suddenly: "Pardon me, lady, but are you all right? You ain't sick or anything, are you?"

Sam looked at him. "No, I'm not sick. I'm perfectly all right."

"Excuse me." He shrugged and turned away. "I just thought you looked sort of peaked—kind of white like."

"I'm all right, thanks."

Sam wrote her letter on the soda fountain counter. She wrote slowly but without hesitation or erasures. She knew precisely what she wanted to say.

"Dear Peak"—Sam wrote in firm pencil—"You have bought the goods, and paid in advance. Now you are learning that the goods will not be delivered. That's not fair, is it? I'm sorry. Fourth will return to you whatever is unspent of the money you have given him. I'm afraid you'll have to wait for the rest, but I can assure you that it will be repaid some day. I am going away tonight for an indefinite period. I shall tell Fourth where I'm going and he will probably tell you. Please don't follow me. I don't want to argue. There's nothing to argue about. Nelson says that you are very clever, and I agree. You are almost too clever. I shall leave your mother's engagement ring with Fourth. I'm afraid I'm making a great deal of trouble, but charity patients are always troublesome I suppose. I'm sorry."

She placed the letter in the envelope, sealed it, and wrote Peak's name and address on the outside. To the clerk she said quietly: "Is there a letter box near here?"

"Yes, Ma'am. Right on the corner."

"Thanks." Sam nodded. "Good night."

Keep on your Feet 4 MORE ACTIVE DAYS

Any Day... But "This"

DOESN'T it always happen? You can't go that day . . . because the calendar says "no".

Are your grips spoiled . . . dates broken . . . because of this age-old curse?

Be modern! Don't suffer unnecessarily. Girls nowadays keep on their feet . . . free from the strain of these trying times.

One girl tells another . . . and the news quickly spreads. "Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound," they say.

That's the way to keep happy and strong. It regulates the system. Relieves the pain.

Try it! Buy a box of the new tablets. Just mention Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the clerk in the drug store . . . and avoid all embarrassing conversation.
